Aaron Gates has been working in the broadcast systems integration field for over a decade and has participated in many large scale projects including ESPN high definition broadcast recording facilities, Microsoft XBOX sound design labs, nationwide DirecTV projects, Mega Yacht entertainment distribution systems and much more.

In this meeting Aaron will introduce and reinforce high quality professional cable termination practices (focusing on audio terminations). Several freely available resources will be introduced, and descriptions of best practices reviewed.

In addition, an often overlooked necessity for any design project - Project Management - will be overviewed from initiation, processes, and planning standpoints for increased success in completing projects on time and under budget.
